

DOUBLE SUICIDE OF AGED COUPLE REVEALS WEDDING

Pair Found Hanged by Same Rope, With Certificate on Table.

SURPRISE TO FAMILY.

Dietzel Introduced Woman as Housekeeper, Who Was Really Wife.

The reason why old Philip Dietzel and his wife hanged themselves at their home in Ridgewood Heights, Queens, last night, has not yet been satisfactorily ascertained. The police learned to-day that until after the couple were dead nobody in the family knew they were married. The woman was always regarded as a housekeeper and treated as one.

Who she was or where she came are questions nobody seems able or willing to answer. Dietzel was a man of means. His house was large and comfortable. He was sixty-five years old and not in good health. After the death of his first wife, two years ago, and without consulting his son, the old man engaged a woman as housekeeper. She never seemed to have any affection for him. She was always treated by him as a servant.

Still Mourned First Wife.
He apparently mourned the loss of his wife, and that he should ever marry again was never remotely suggested, either by himself or any of his friends. His two sons, who made their home with him, had no knowledge of any attachment between their father and the housekeeper, who was past fifty years old.

One of the sons, returning home last night, found the father and the housekeeper hanging from the same rope. Both were dead and the bodies were cold.

In plain view on the table lay a marriage certificate which showed they had been man and wife. This placed a different aspect on the deed, and all became convinced that the double suicide had been carefully planned.

Henry Dietzel was the son who discovered the bodies. A passage runs between the kitchen and the hall. At either end, over the doors, are transoms. The rope had been thrown across the two transoms bars, and at the kitchen end of the rope the old man's body was hanging. Twelve feet away and facing him, hanged that of his wife. The nose about her neck had been placed over the partition transom. The adjustment of the ropes and the measurement of the rope had been nicely calculated.

The physician called notified Coroner Nutt, and the investigation was begun. It was thought that the old man might have left some letter explaining the reason for the act, but none has been found.

WAR OF STATES IN LAW TANGLE OVER INSURANCE

Massachusetts and New York
Courts Each Enjoin
the Other.

A peculiar legal tangle, in which a Massachusetts court has issued an injunction restraining the prosecution of a case in this State and a Justice of the New York Supreme Court has granted a similar injunction restraining action in Massachusetts, was disclosed to-day before Supreme Court Justice Hendricks. The case is that of Anna C. M. Webster against the Columbia National Life Insurance Company, a Massachusetts corporation, to recover $20,000, the amount of a policy held by Everett B. Webster, who died Nov. 29, 1907.

Justice Hendricks reserved decision. It is contended by the Columbia National Life Insurance Company that Webster obtained his policy by fraud and misrepresentation, that he had an incurable disease, of which he did not inform the company when he got the policy. Justice Hendricks reserved decision.

RICH THUG VICTIM NEAR BURIAL AS HOMELESS TRAMP

Body of George Dietz on Way to Potter's Field When Found by Widow.

The murder of George Dietz, a manufacturer of artificial flowers, who had lived for many years with his wife and family at No. 11 North Fourteenth street, Williamsburg, was brought to light to-day when the man's wife went to the Bedford avenue police station to report that he had been missing from home since Sunday night.

Had Mrs. Dietz delayed a few hours longer her husband would have been buried in Potter's Field under the name of Tom Williams, and described as a homeless tramp, who had been mortally injured in some nocturnal way while walking near the Williamsburg Hospital on Sunday night.

Going on the theory that the man who was picked up with a blackjack hole in his head and died a day later in the hospital was a homeless, friendless wanderer, the police had paid little attention to the circumstances surrounding his death. Now that it is known he was a well-to-do merchant, with family and friends, a different aspect is put upon the crime.

Saw Assaultants Flee.
Mr. Dietz left his home about 9 o'clock Sunday night, to take a short walk and smoke his pipe. Two hours later, two citizens who were passing along Bedford avenue within one hundred feet of the Williamsburg Hospital, heard a cry and saw two men running away. A few minutes later they stumbled over an unconscious man.

One of the men notified Dr. Walker and the victim of the attack was placed on an operating table, where it was found his skull had been fractured by a blow. An operation was performed, but the man died on Monday.

Identified as Tom Williams.
There was nothing in the man's clothing to establish his identity, except an old silver watch, containing his photograph. The body was removed to the Morgue and yesterday a man, whose name the police did not get, appeared there and identified the murdered man as Tom Williams, fifty-three years old, an occasional guest in various Williamsburg lodging-houses. The identifier said that Williams, when he worked, was a laborer.

Satisfied with this identification, the police arranged to have the body interred in Potter's Field to-day. The old silver watch was taken to the Bedford avenue station and turned over to Lieut. Willis.

Watch Proves Identity.
Willis was on the desk this morning when Mrs. Dietz and her son, George, came.

called. They said they wished to have a general alarm sent out for George Dietz, fifty-three years old, a manufacturer of artificial flowers, who had lived for many years at No. 11 North Fourteenth street.

Then Mrs. Dietz gave a detailed description of her husband and mentioned the fact that he carried an old silver watch, which he had worn since boyhood.

JEROME WRONG AS TO LITTLE

District Attorney Jerome this morning announced that he had unwittingly, through a lapse of memory, done a wrong to a little, the publisher, in a statement made in court before Judge Matton, the other day in regard to the prosecution by Anthony Comstock of the publisher of "The Triumph of David," Mr. Little was the houseman in that case. Mr. Jerome said, and not the man accused.

SILVER SERVICE FOR HORN.

Twenty years ago to-day, when Edward Horn was a young clerk in the County Clerk's office, he got married. He is still in the County Clerk's office, and his friends did not forget that this was his twentieth wedding anniversary.

When he reached the office to-day he found his desk and chair smothered under decorations of shamrocks, carnations and green ribbons. While he gazed in surprise at the spectacle the office force moved in and conferred with County Clerk Dooling, in the name of the force, presented him with a massive silver service and Deputy County Clerk Dooling and others said new things about the bridegroom of a score of years ago. Mr. Horn was completely knocked off his feet by the thoughtfulness of his associates, but managed to make an effective reply.
